

Q

Cowichan Valley

Nanaimo

Deep Dives V

Newsletters

About Us V Sponsorship

Zimbabwean rapper Alpha Centauri lights up

With several genre-blending singles set to launch this year, the Nanaimo-based hip-hop artist reflects on the revelations that helped propel his craft.

BY DAVID OWEN RAMA • NANAIMO • MARCH 21, 2023

The hip-hop songwriter brings positive energy and his

Subscribe to our newsletters

Sign up for your instant con to the Cowichan Valley and Nanaimo.

Subscribe

Deep Dive: Housing Und Pressure

native Shona language to his latest single, I'll Fly. Photo courtesy of Alpha Centauri

After six years establishing himself in Canada, Zimbabwean rapper Alpha Centauri has forged creative relationships in Nanaimo that have helped him take his craft to the next level.

Collaborating with local event promoter and music producer Wes Smith, Alpha Centauri has formulated a long-term plan to put out several new singles over the course of 2023, eventually leading up to a full-length studio release scheduled for March 2024.

Born Sean Chigumba in Harare, Zimbabwe to professional parents, Alpha Centauri was strongly encouraged by his family to pursue a career in law. "I come from a privileged background," he explains over the phone from his home in North Nanaimo. "My mother is a lawyer and my father is an engineer, so I was expected to seek out a professional career as well."

A passionate music lover since he was a child and heavily influenced by western R&B music and Zimbabwean Sungura artists like Alick Macheso, popular music that dominated the country's airwaves, he was inspired to put together a team of dancers with some of his friends under the moniker Blaze Skwad, a crew

Magdalena tena safety assuranc compensation a evictions loom

Magdalena apar complex needs: million in repair documents

Local news, powere the community.

Readers make The Discours possible. We need your sup keep providing in-depth loc—and keep it open and free charge for everyone.

Support The Discou

Deep Dive: It Takes a Vi

10 ways to bette support tenants vulnerabilities c income, age or disabilities

'I want it to stop Tenants and advallege bullying l profit housing p that would perform at local sports events.

Q&A: What are vulnerable tena rights in non-prohousing?

Who will protec income seniors | dying in extrem

Seniors left in d or dead — for d Nanaimo Afford

Housing Society

Your Nanaimo newsletter

subscribe, you'll get Nanaimo This Week straight to your inbox even — giving you the first peek at our latest investigations, local newses, upcoming events and ways to get involved in our community.

Email

Subscribe

RH

Reporter's Note How I've learne report on my ow community

In 2010 the young music fan reluctantly relocated to South Africa where he studied at the Nelson Mandela School of Law at Fort Hare University. During his studies he and many of his schoolmates lived in Quigney, a once affluent seaside community that had devolved into a very dangerous neighbourhood as a result of poverty and crime.

Quigney was so dangerous that Alpha Centauri himself narrowly escaped a fatal stabbing in the streets, he recounts. When not attending classes, he and his fellow students remained inside their dorms to avoid the dangers outside.

During this period Alpha Centauri and some of his friends began taking an interest in hip-hop music and writing raps of their own. They began collecting some basic recording equipment which allowed him to work with other local rappers while developing his skills in the art form.

He completed his studies in 2014 then returned to his home in Zimbabwe, where he began practicing law. This was a challenging time for the young lawyer as his heart remained anchored in his love of music.

But a personal revelation would propel him into the next stage of his life.

"I was going through a rough time in my life, and I was upset. I was looking up at the stars asking for answers from the universe, and it never answered me back. Then as I was walking back in the house, I caught my reflection in the window, and at that moment I realized that I actually possessed all of the answers I needed for all of the questions I have about life. So, I named myself after a star to remind me that I have the answers, and all I had to do was look within."

Inspired by this personal epiphany, Alpha Centauri began considering a life elsewhere in the world. "I knew that it was quite common for many Zimbabweans to leave their country and establish new lives in other parts of the world and with this in mind I set my sights on the possibility of immigrating to Canada."

Canada felt like it could be a good fit because the country offered work permits to foreign students which would provide the young rapper with the opportunity to broaden his education while going through the process of seeking permanent residence in the country.

"I wanted to find somewhere where I could really start over and put my roots in the ground, to maybe find an opportunity for my siblings to be able to come to school in a different place," he says.

Moving to Nanaimo in 2016, Alpha Centauri began studying business and marketing at Vancouver Island University (VIU). It was during this time that he continued to develop his rhyming skills, eventually recording many of his own soulful rap songs on a 12-year-old laptop.

As a student at VIU he began attending open mic nights at the student union pub where to his great pleasure he immediately met other young Zimabawean hip-hop fans congregating there to flex their rhyming and DJ skills in freestyle rap battles.

It was at one of these pre-pandemic open mic nights that local music producer Smith caught the young rapper's performance.

"I was at the annual Hip Hop Forum at the VIU pub," Smith recalls. "Alpha Centauri performed a song with fellow student Swisher called Away, and that's what it did, it blew me away. So I went up and introduced myself."

Following that meet up, Smith began booking Alpha Centauri and some of his crew on a few local shows he was presenting. The young rappers opened for several West Coast artists such as Moka Only, Sirreal, Illvis Freshly and Caleb Hart.

Smith and Alpha Centauri continued to stay in touch and by 2019 the young artist approached Smith with a fistful of new songs.

Smith was quite impressed with the new material and suggested the songs would benefit from a live backing band. The producer then spent a period of time sourcing and recruiting the right musicians to bring life to the proposed recording sessions.

The Nanaimo-based rapper honed his skills as a student in South Africa and then Vancouver Island University.

Photo courtesy of Alpha Centauri

Limited by the new pandemic restrictions, Smith kept his search focused primarily on the West Coast music scene recruiting Vancouver reggae band RebeLstoke, along with other local session musicians including trumpet player David Bamford, DJ All Good, as well as Aurah Ariko, an Edmonton-based singer who was actually a high school friend of Alpha Centauri from Zimbabwe.

Twenty songs came out of those initial recording sessions showcasing a variety of musical influences like funk and R&B, melded with popular African genres such as Congolese rumba, Afrobeat and Sungura stylings.

Both Smith and Alpha Centauri describe the recording sessions as very smooth and prolific with each of them bringing a different perspective to the creation that they found highly complementary.

Alpha Centauri brings a bilingual flow to this new music rapping in both English and his native Shona language.

"The Shona language is so versatile," he explains. "If you really know how to use it well you can incorporate it into rap in such a way that it can be mixed in and out with people barely noticing the transition."

As an attempt to stand out in a media-saturated world, Alpha Centauri and his producer have devised a plan to slowly release eight singles over the course of 2023 leading up to a full-length studio release slated for March 2024.

The first single of this series, I'll Fly, blends Alpha Centauri's poetry with live instrumentation from Vancouver-based RebeLstoke. It's now available for purchase, with samples of forthcoming singles from these sessions available to stream at Alpha Centauri's website.

His single Away was recently placed as the theme for the Canadian film Evelyne, starring Zimbabwean-Canadian actress Rumbie Mustofa, and directed by Vancouver based filmmaker Carl Bessai.

On a mission to connect with young hip-hop fans, Alpha Centauri hopes the life lessons that have guided him to this point in time might bring inspiration to those who struggle just as he has.

"I want to put the medicine in the music. So my music has a lot of depth to it. It has multiple layers, you know? Nothing that I say is by accident, and nothing is frivolous."

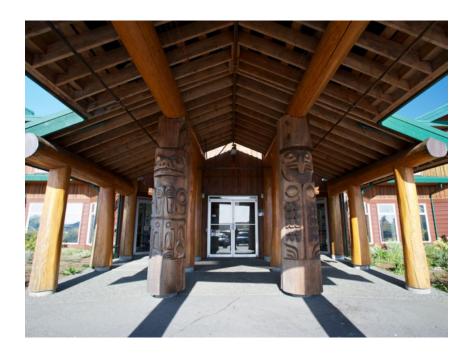

Author

Related Articles

After the City of Nanaimo moved to rezone an ancient Snuneymuxw village site, B.C.'s reconciliation minister stepped in

BY LYS MORTON • NANAIMO • JULY 28, 2023

'It's important we allow time for this work to occur,' the minister said as he offered mediation between the City of Nanaimo, Snuneymuxw First Nation...

'It's better than Disneyland': Local environmentalists unite to protect Harewood Plains

BY JULIE CHADWICK • NANAIMO • JULY 20, 2023

One of B.C.'s rarest ecosystems is slated to become a subdivision. Local environmentalists say it's 'too precious to potentially lose.'

Nanaimo Fringe Festival director steps down after community calls out transphobic online speech

BY LYS MORTON • NANAIMO • JULY 13, 2023

The artistic managing director will continue to advise so the August event proceeds as organizers vow to investigate community safety concerns this fall. The Discourse provides community-powered journalism to underserved communities.

Subscribe to our newsletters

Sign up for your instant connection to the Cowichan Valley and Nanaimo.

Learn More

SPONSORSHI

P

CONTACT US

COMMUNITY GUIDELINES

ETHICS POLICY

DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION
POLICY

LOGIN

Support Us

Copyright © 2023 Discourse Community Publishing | Powered by Indiegraf Media Privacy Policy | Subscription Agreement | Terms of Use